GIRLS in ENGINEERING

Join us this summer for a week of exciting hands-on activities, design challenges, and behind-the-scenes lab tours. Led by UC Berkeley staff and researchers, camp introduces participants* to the many facets of engineering, design thinking, and real-world problem solving in a safe, supportive, and inclusive environment. Come explore science and engineering on the UC Berkeley campus with us!
*GiE is open to all gender identities.

Scholarships Available!

GiE awards scholarships based on financial need and actively recruits students from low socio-economic backgrounds and underrepresented minority groups. Apply today!

Camp Description

Students interested in participating in camp must apply! Campers explore a variety of STEM fields and careers in a small group setting, learn with peers with similar interests, meet inspiring mentors at various career stages, and get exposure to campus life. As such, we look for students with a strong interest in learning more about engineering and science, and who would benefit from an introductory STEM camp.
